

BENEFITS OF GRACE MEMBERSHIP (and responsibilities as a member)

Deciding to homeschool is a tough enough task for many of us. Once that choice has been made, though, so many other things need to be researched and new decisions made.

For many families, finding a homeschool support group is on that necessary list. Even veteran homeschoolers find themselves considering annually whether or not to participate in a support group.

I think it's a good question to ask yourself. Personally, I've always found the answer easy: GRACE is where my family put down its homeschool roots so to speak, and we have made many close friendships over the years. GRACE's activities are just a normal, expected part of our schedule, and something we look forward to. GRACE is a constant in our homeschool, which is something to appreciate when every year brings new challenges to figure out.

If you are a new family, you may wonder how to fit in and get connected. You'll need to consider what your (and your children's) relationship personality is. What type event would you be most comfortable with in the beginning: A field trip, which is structured with minimal time for small talk and includes everyone in the family? A park day, which is just the opposite, with small talk and playtime as the priorities? A Ladies Night Out, which is sometimes structured, sometimes not and includes just the adults? Whichever type of event makes you feel most comfortable is probably the best way to get your feet wet. You can add in other events anytime, as faces become familiar, and you are ready.

A veteran family will have different challenges. Many of our dearest friends will be at events, but we'll be juggling our teenagers' rather more complicated schedules and perhaps sharing our car with them. By now we clearly know the benefits being a part of the group has brought to the family, and the question turns more to time management.

Of course it's not quite that cut and dried, but making a decision to be a part of a support group is important. And I want to help you think through making the decision that will be best for your family for this year.

If you decide that GRACE has a place in your homeschool, we are thrilled to have you as an active member, and we look forward to seeing you at many events throughout the year!

There are many different kinds of support groups these days. GRACE is what can be defined as a relational, friendship-based group. Because of this, GRACE restricts the majority of its activities to be for members-only. In this smaller, predictable environment, friendships can be cultivated as you see the same faces over and over at different events.

As members, you are needed to help provide the resources to make these activities happen. Planners and event workers are essential. When you commit to a job, you take responsibility for remembering to fulfill that commitment. If you don't, someone else has to step in, someone who doesn't necessarily have that extra time! Along with that, if you are planning an event that needs to be advertised to our members, it is your responsibility to get the information to the Newsletter Editor by the deadline. The editor cannot provide our membership with complete timely information otherwise!

As members, you are given many opportunities for activities. Some of these activities require an RSVP. RSVP's serve to make sure we meet minimum requirements of various facilities. They also serve to let us know when we have reached our limit of attendees. Quite often, a waiting list is developed of members who want to go to an event. When you RSVP you are committing to attending that event. If a cancellation is necessary, you need to inform the planner prior to the event.

Because of the definition of who GRACE is, our events should never be advertised by our members or our member's friends to the various e-loops around town. We do not have anything against these e-loops, they are a very useful form of homeschool support for those families who utilize them. However, they have hundreds of members. When those non-GRACE members then inquire about an event they sometimes overwhelm our planners due to their sheer numbers. Please help us keep GRACE as the smooth-running, relationship-based group we all like it to be.

So, with everyone working to support each other, we can all look forward to a wonderful year of park days, presentations, youth activities, parties, Ladies Nights Out, field trips and best of all: each other. We are a wonderful network of personalities, experiences and wisdom. Tap into it, come join us!

GRACE Conduct Policy

This version of the Conduct Policy is in effect as of February 7, 2002 and replaces any previous copy which has been distributed.

Read the following, then sign your agreement on page two of the Registration Form. By signing you are fulfilling a requirement for membership in GRACE. You are giving us a guarantee that your family will adhere to this policy during all group activities.

Why a Conduct Policy?

GRACE is a homeschool organization. GRACE is also a Christian organization. Both of these descriptions require that our conduct be exemplary, above reproach. Every time our families step out into the world we are witnessing to everyone we encounter, both as homeschoolers and as Christians. Whether the people are in a retail environment, at a park, on a field trip, or in a business office, they will form an opinion of homeschoolers and of Christians based on your family. The rights and freedoms we have are fragile, and unfortunately, they are easy to take for granted. Our country's founders fought tirelessly to win our religious freedoms. The early homeschoolers also fought a difficult battle. We must not forget the efforts of either group, and we must not, through our apathy, threaten the loss of those freedoms.

We also have a responsibility to each other. When we get together, we expect that every family in attendance holds to the same basic set of values and beliefs, even though we have diverse methods and personalities. We trust each other and each other's children in a way we may not trust others. The mothers are content to spend necessary time being refreshed and seeking the advice of others, knowing that their children will be treated fairly by all, and that all will be watching out for each other's welfare. The children are content to develop friendships with each other, knowing that in this environment they will not experience the bullying and peer pressure common to so many childhood gatherings.

The Policy

- All children must be supervised by a responsible adult at all activities.
- If the parent is not present, the parent must have spoken with another attending adult and given disciplinary responsibility to that adult.
- The supervising adult must be aware of his/her child(ren)'s activities and behavior.
- Inappropriate behavior requires immediate consequences.
- Appropriate language is expected. This excludes cursing, teasing, using the Lord's name in vain, etc.
- Physical contact such as general roughhousing, hitting or pushing is not acceptable.
- Children need to understand when they are required to be still and quiet (i.e. while we are being spoken to on a field trip).
- Any parent within our homeschool group who witnesses inappropriate behavior has the authority to verbally correct the child(ren). Children must understand that they are expected to respect any adult in our gathering. Note: Be sure children are aware that if any adult would make a suggestion which makes them uncomfortable, they should immediately check with their own parent.
- It is unacceptable for any person, child or adult, to bring any weapon, concealed or revealed, to any GRACE activity. A weapon is a knife, a gun, or any other object whose purpose would be to cause injury to another person. ANY failure to comply with this policy item will result in that family being permanently removed from membership in GRACE.

Families who have difficulty meeting these requirements will be counseled by a member of the Board, and repeated conduct problems will result in that family being restricted from attending some or all group activities.
